

Brad Carter moved to Maine in 1983. Moving from the northern Virginia area, he chose Rockland for the incomparable quality of life, opening Brad Carter Real Estate in 1989. As a self-employed broker, Brad also recognizes the importance of giving back to the community. He volunteers at the school, city and county committees, the Lobster Festival and the Owls Head Transportation Museum. He also enjoys spending time with his family.

Throughout the last twenty years, Brad has enjoyed working with clients in buying and selling property, including homes, camps, land, commercial properties and aircraft hangers.

After the savings and loan collapse in the early 1990s, Brad became experienced in distress sales, receiving a designation as a HUD broker. He remains one of the few in this area allowed to submit offers on government owned properties.
